

Reginald T. Shuford, Esq., is a senior staff counsel in the American Civil Liberties Union Foundation's Racial Justice Program. An attorney with the ACLU since 1995, he helped pioneer legal challenges to racial profiling practices nationwide and is the ACLU's chief litigator in challenges to racial profiling, leading national litigation efforts and consulting with ACLU state affiliates and others in cases of "driving while black or brown," airport profiling, and profiling related to the war on terror. Since September 11, 2001, working with colleagues around the country, he has filed a half dozen landmark lawsuits against major airlines alleging racial discrimination, as well as a nationwide challenge to the Transportation Security Administration's management of the No-Fly List. His docket also has included cases involving educational adequacy and equity, the school to prison pipeline, affirmative action, and the right to counsel for indigents. He also has been involved in advocacy against racism in the use of the death penalty and in favor of affirmative action. He has authored numerous petitions and briefs for cases that were presented to the U.S. Supreme Court dealing with matters of discrimination, the Equal Protection Clause and First and Fourth Amendment rights. He has published articles related to racial profiling, affirmative action, and violence in the African-American community. Reggie also teaches and speaks regularly around the country and internationally, including Moscow, Geneva, and Canada, on issues of racial justice, profiling, discrimination, national security, and other topics, and has appeared on numerous television programs, including CNN's Burden of Proof and Talk Back Live, ABC's 20/20, Court TV's Pros and Cons and Crier Today, NBC's Nightly News and Dateline, an MTV documentary, True Life: I Am Driving While Black, and was featured in Leading the Way: The History of Black Lawyers and Judges in America Throughout the Twentieth Century, on Court TV. He has been interviewed on various radio programs, including National Public Radio and MSNBC, and has been quoted in major newspapers such as The New York Times, The Washington Post, USA Today, and The Guardian. In addition to his litigation responsibilities, Shuford is the ACLU's Recruitment and Retention Officer for attorneys of color on the national legal staff. Prior to coming to the ACLU, Reggie worked in private practice in Raleigh, NC, with the firm Richard Schwartz & Associates, specializing in education law. Just after graduating law school, he clerked with the Hon. Henry E. Frye of the Supreme Court of North Carolina. Reggie is a graduate of the University of North Carolina School of Law, in Chapel Hill, where he was his graduating class president. He is a Wasserstein Public Interest Fellow at Harvard Law School for the 2009-10 academic year and the recent recipient of the University of North Carolina School of Law's Distinguished Alumnus Award.